The public debt was reduced $10,000-000 during 1883, which is a good New Year's gift to the country.

Edward Keyes a wealthy resident of Unity, New Hampshire, died the other day, and left behind him a record for being the greatest fool in the town. He bequeathed to his only daughter $15,000, but gave the school district $12,000.

Henry Villard, president of the Northern Pacific, who marched across the continent last September in all the splendor of a monarch, is now, it is claimed, a ruined man—broken in purse and in heart. Mr. Villard is not the only man who has reached a little too far.

To show how one man will become wedded to his business, it is said that a newspaper carrier in Philadelphia carried on one route 48 years, and during sunshines and storms, summer and winter, he was always there, strictly attending to his business. He now retires at the age of 73.

Professor Swift of the Warren observatory, New York, says that the recent red sunsets were due to extraneous matter which comes into our atmosphere and reflects the red rays of the sun. What the matter is it is impossible to say, but he says the red sunsets are not the result of volcanoes or earthquakes.

Erwin & Benedict, patent lawyers 395 East Water street, Milwaukee, Wis., report the following patents issued recently to Wisconsin inventors:

Block presser for wood paper pulp machine (reissue) N. H. Breckin, Marietta.

Wagon bolster spring—W. Cole, Milwaukee.

Swamp and grub hook—A. M. Muller, Wausau.

Adjustable reel for harvesters and mowing machines, J. D. Nix, Wausau.

The Manhattan, an illustrated monthly magazine, begins the new year with brilliant prospects of success. The January number has a finely illustrated article on the Luthor monument at Worms, with a striking portrait of Luthor as a troubleshooter. It also contains an excellent article on "Pompeii, Past and Present," with some handsome illustrations. From beginning to end, the table of contents is a good one. We know of no monthly that deserves more success than the Manhattan. It is only $3 a year or 25 cents a number, and is published by the Manhattan Magazine company, Temple Court, New York City.

The jury in the Emma Bond case found a verdict of "not guilty" for Montgomery, Petts and Clementi. Such a verdict was not expected. There was every reason to believe that they would be found guilty. It is true that there was no positive evidence that they committed the terrible outrage, except that Miss Bond swore she recognized Montgomery as one of the three who entered the school house at the time the assault was committed. The other evidence was of strong circumstantial nature, which the public thought should warrant a verdict of guilty. At least accounts all were quiet at Hulbert, and no threats of violence were manifested.

During 1883, the immigration to this country from Europe, reached a little over $450,000, and of this number 388,511 landed in New York, this, as compared with 1882, shows a falling off in the immigration at that point of 6,654. Of the immigrants who arrived during 1883 about 170,000 were Germans. A little more than 90,000 came from the British Isles, and of those over one-half were Irish. About 25,000 came from Italy, Sweden followed with about 20,000 immigrants, and Norway and Hungary each contributed over 11,000. During the last year 58,506 cabin passengers from Europe landed at the port of New York. This shows an increase of 546 over the figures of 1882.

Washington society has been somewhat in a state of unrest in regard to the question as to who was "the first lady in the land." The president has no wife, neither has the president of the senate, and the question arises as to whether the wife of the chief justice would out-rank the wives of the secretary of state and Mr. Speaker Carlisle. When President Arthur gave his brilliant New Year's reception, he settled this perplexing social question. When he entered the grand east room to open the reception, he was accompanied by Mrs. Carlisle, who took the right arm of the president. This point of etiquette having been settled for the present, administration, congress can now proceed to hammer away at the tariff.

It was probably the better part of valor for Mr. Vilas to get into no personal quarrel with Mr. Mariner, of Milwaukee, who took the liberty of calling him a liar during the trial of a case at Racine a few days ago. The Inter Ocean, in commenting on the gross insult, uses these words: "There seems to be considerable excitement in Wisconsin because two Mariner, ancient or modern, called Colonel Wm. F. Vilas a liar." Mr. Vilas is a gentleman, a scholar, and has the respect of people who know him, and his treatment of the subject with contempt will gain him the respect of those who do not know him. The theory that a man must prance around with a revolver or a shotgun because some one calls him "a liar" may be accepted below Mason and Dixon's line, but in this latitude the man who utters the offensive words is usually a great deal less a gentleman than he is when they are directed.

A few months ago Miss Kate Shelley, a young lady living at Monticello, Iowa, had the courage and the presence of mind to save a Northwestern train from destruction, at that place. It was a heroic act, and Congressmen Holmes of Iowa, will introduce a bill in the house of representatives to appropriate funds with which to educate Miss Shelley. She is a poor girl, and needs the help, but why doesn't the Northwestern furnish the funds instead of the National government? Her rare presence of mind was a direct benefit to the Chicago and Northwestern railway company, and it would soon that under all the circumstances, the company could well afford to pay for her education. We believe the Northwestern has been liberal, but not to that extent which enables Shelley to educate herself from the amount.

MAKING ITS RECORD.

The New Year Writes Its First Record in Blood.

A Canadian Railway Collision Sends Twenty-One Souls to Eternity

Horrific Scenes at the Week—Steam and Fire Do Their Dearly Work—Awful Disaster in Michigan.

TOMORROW, Out, Jan. 3.—One of the most frightful railway accidents that ever occurred in Canada took place at 6:35 a.m. About fifteen minutes previous a suburban train, consisting of dummy-engine and two cars, on the Great Western division of the Grand Trunk, left the Union station, having on board about sixty passengers, chiefly employees of the bolt and screw works, and a passenger train a few cars eastward. About 7:15 a.m. the train, with Miss Bond, who had been looking for her, was on the home circle, about two miles from the Wabash track. The lightning express, belated by the snowstorm, and making up lost time, struck the horses and the shingle without a moment's warning, the horses were thrown to one side, dead. Frank Long was instantly killed and frightfully mangled. Wm. Rohrs died by the roadside in the storm twenty minutes later. Henry Arps was badly bruised, but is still living. The two other young men escaped unharmed. Long was only 24 years old, and Rohrs only 27. Both were fully married. Charged of their wives is terrible.

AN Illinois Central Disaster.

CHICAGO, Jan. 3.—An American Press special from Fort Dodge, Iowa, says: "The west-bound passenger train on the Illinois Central railroad, which left here at 6 a.m. with a double-header, struck a broken iron twelve miles west of this city, throwing two cars and a sleep car a long distance eastward. Miss T. H. Burt, who was in the sleep car, was instantly killed, her skull being crushed. Her body escaped unharmed. C. L. Turner, of Manchester, Iowa, sustained fatal injuries. Six others were injured, none fatally. A wrecking train with supreme left at once for the scene, but none of the sufferers could be removed from the farm houses to which they had been taken.

AN INTOXICATED MAN Perishes in the Storm.

MONTRÉAL, Jan. 3.—During the recent severe storm, Gilbert G. Ensign started for his home, some five miles from the tavern at Little Mills, near Lawrenceville, Quebec. Having a stiff leg and being in liquor, he could not resist the severe cold and blinding storm, and perished when within three steps of his own door. A mitten found above the snow was the only mark that led to the finding of the frozen body. A neighbor found the mitten, which he had decided not to go back to Christian country, but will settle in Michigan. Lea Patric had nothing to say except that he was glad.

When the jury retired first in the morning a vote was taken, and it stood five for conviction and seven for acquittal. One of the jury said they had no trouble in arriving at a verdict. He said the jury believed that Miss Bond had been outraged, but that they could not identify the man who did it.

A correspondent approached John C. Montgomery and asked him when he thought about the verdict, to which he replied that he had very little to say at present; that he was as he had claimed all the time, innocent, and that he was going back to Christian country to live. When asked if he had any theory on this case he said that he had, but did not care to give it at present, but did care to tell you the secret of the vigorous prosecution that has been made against him. It is a very bad business, day after day, the alleged outrage, and that the crime had been committed." Cincinnati says that he has never said anything against Miss Bond, nor would he, he has decided not to go back to Christian country, but will settle in Michigan. Lea Patric had nothing to say except that he was glad.

THE DAILY MURDER of Jan. One.

Miss Moxley, Iowa, Jan. 3.—A burglar named Williams, confined in the Ottumwa jail, shot and killed the turkey, John Manning, about 11 o'clock a.m. and escaped. He also discharged his revolver, which had by some means been furnished him from outside of the jail, at a lady who was his attempt to escape, but fortunately missed his aim. Hundreds of citizens are scouring the country in search of the desperado, and if he is found he will certainly be lynched.

STEAMSHIP CAPTAIN Drowned.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3.—Capt. Nicholson of the British steamer Lord Collingwood, while leaving the head forty miles off Sandy hook, fell overboard and was drowned. The vessel was from the Mediterranean, loaded with fruit.

MORE Figures.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 3.—The total interest and non-interest bearing debt of the United States on the last day of December, 1882, was $1,007,543, a decrease of $109,553 during the calendar year of 1882. The receipts for December, 1882, were $10,411,80, or about $1,500,000 less than December, 1881. The internal revenue receipts for December, 1882, were $29,624,20, or about $2,500,000 less than December, 1881. The receipts of the government from various sources for the calendar year ended December 31, 1882, were: Customs, $29,624,190; internal revenue, $121,991,357; miscellaneous, $36,425,79; post, $29,801,601. The expenditures for the same period were: Ordinary expenses, $104,629,019; pensions, $72,840,10; interest on debts, $56,701,783; total, $265,256,003. A comparison of receipts during the first half of the present fiscal year with those of the corresponding period in 1882 shows a falling off of more than $25,000,000.

OVERWHELMED by the Waters.

HANCOCK, Mich., Jan. 3.—One of the most terrible disasters that has ever occurred in this country was that of the bursting of the Huron Mining company's dam, situated in a hill about a mile above Piney Lake. The dam is a very large earth embankment, one side serving water from one of the branches of Piney River. A portion of the embankment is about eighty feet long and twenty feet deep. This gave way from a tremendous pressure of water, and millions of gallons were sent down the slope into a deep ravine, uprooting trees, and flinging huge rocks to the mouth of the ravine. On the south shore of Partage Lake were the residences of E. Raymond and S. E. Cleaves. Here the water did its appalling work. Mrs. E. Raymond heard the roarings of the water and quickly jumped from her bed, taking two of her children in her arms and running through the house to the front door, and in high glee dashes to a neighbor's house about a mile distant. She started a man back to inform her husband of her safety. When he arrived the house was unapproachable, and the water, twenty feet high in the ravine, was dashed madly around the house, hurling everything before it. One side of the house was torn off by the floating trees. When Mrs. Raymond left the house it contained her husband, her son and servant girl, and Mrs. James Raymond and her son, of Allenton, Mich., who had come to spend New Year's with the family. These five persons had remained to die before the house was dashed madly around the debris that were dashed with the water, and were never seen again. They were never found.

DR. LOOM'S REMAINS.

WASHINGTON CITY, Jan. 3.—Secretary Chandler received the following cable message from Minister Hunt at St. Petersburg: "Barber telegraphs from Tonks of his arrival there. He expects to reach Orenburg on the 15th instant." Barber has charge of the bodies of Lent, Do Long and comrades, and is bringing them home via St. Petersburg. At Orenburg Barber will strike the railway which will take him to St. Petersburg in two days. He will reach New York by February 1.

MENDOTA, Ill., Jan. 3.—Charles L. Otto, of the palace jewelry store, has assigned. Liabilities estimated at $10,000. Assets, probably about half that amount.

NOT GUILTY.

Such is the Verdict of the Jury in the Emma Bond Case—Too Cold for the Lynchers.

HILLSBORO, Ill., Jan. 3.—At 8 o'clock in the evening the jury in the Bond case returned a verdict of not guilty. The case was given into their hands at 10 a.m., and from that hour to the time they returned their verdict the court-room was filled with an anxious population. Which were we to find who was to be found? The judge, the of the Allenton mine. Thomas had visited the scene of the lake shore in independent conference. A critical meeting was called for the purpose of raising funds to make a search for the bodies of the missing victims. Fourteen hundred dollars was subscribed.

A HAPPY NEW YEAR.

NAPOLEON, O., Jan. 3.—In the driving snowstorm, about 6 o'clock, a gay party of young men, with song and laugh, were going to the home of the Rev. Dr. George N. Phillips, a few miles from Napoleon. Occupied with their merry chat, they drove on to the Wabash track. The lightning express, belated by the snowstorm, and making up lost time, struck the horses and the shingle without a moment's warning, the horses were thrown to one side, dead. Frank Long was instantly killed and frightfully mangled. Wm. Rohrs died by the roadside in the storm twenty minutes later. Henry Arps was badly bruised, but is still living. The two other young men escaped unharmed. Long was only 24 years old, and Rohrs only 27. Both were fully married. Charged of their wives is terrible.
